

Pulsar - MeteorBeat - week one

The managerial work. Communication and version control.

Communication

Discord

It's better than Slack at least.

Special thanks to Cory.

No private branches

Because we're hosting on Github and our repo is public it's not possible to have a private branch (unless you're forking the repo -- and in which case I'll trust you to do the right thing).

Don't push to master

No code changes or additions directly to master branch.

Master stays safe.

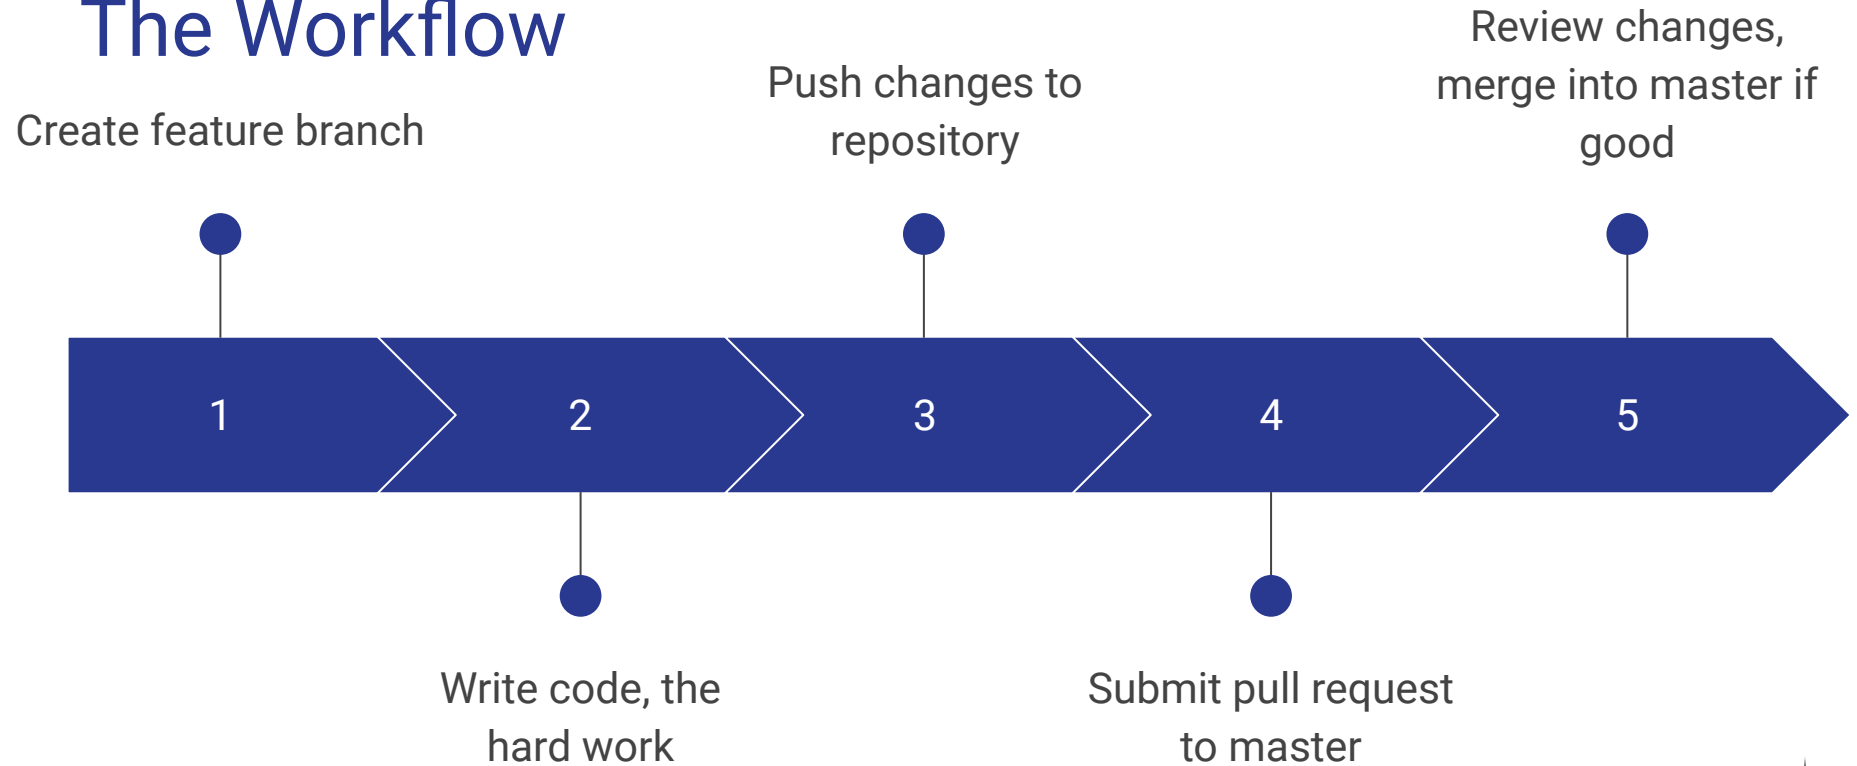

Documentation/asset changes are fine.

Merge every week

If you've made a code change in a given week submit a pull request of your working branch to master.

No code drift.
